How To Prepare

1. Decide on the desired outcome or goal
2. Schedule an appointment at a Neighborhood Legal Clinic
3. Write a list of specific questions for the attorney
4. Bring to the clinic appointment:
   • Agreements or contracts (signed or proposed)
   • Written rules or policies
   • Court orders
   • Court papers served on you or that you filed with the court
   • All letters or e-mails to and from person or business with whom you have the disagreement
   • Specific paperwork related to the case. For example, employee handbook, parenting plan, child support order, protection order, lease, rental agreement
5. Identify all deadlines
6. Tell the legal clinic volunteer about these deadlines
7. Be prepared to tell the history of the legal issue to the legal clinic volunteer

History of NLC
The Neighborhood Legal Clinics (NLC) began in 1974 when three young and energetic attorneys opened the first clinic at the Country Doctor Medical Clinic in the Capital Hill neighborhood of Seattle. The program has grown to 34 clinics utilizing over 750 volunteer attorneys and legal assistants. These volunteers provide King County residents with up to 30 minutes of advice, consultation, information, and referrals free of charge. NLC attorneys may help a client determine if their problem is a legal one, suggest possible options, review legal documents, and provide sources for referral.
