Championing access to JUSTICE and DIVERSITY within the legal profession

2019–2020 ANNUAL REPORT
The past year has been like no other for our profession, our community, our country, and our world. Yet despite the ongoing challenges of 2020, the King County Bar Foundation has not only survived, we have succeeded in pivoting the organization to operate in a “new normal” environment and continued to pursue our mission, thanks to our dedicated trustees and staff, pro bono volunteers, and generous contributors.

The King County Bar Foundation raises funds for three primary purposes. First, we support and provide access to justice for low income individuals in King County through KCBA Pro Bono Services programs. Second, we promote more inclusiveness and diversity within the King County legal community by providing LSAT prep course grants to diverse students wishing to apply to law school and awarding scholarships to minority law students at the Seattle University and University of Washington Schools of Law. Third, the Foundation assists in raising funds for pro bono civil legal aid programs across the state in partnership with the Legal Foundation of Washington.

With COVID-19, our normal way of working had to change. COVID-19 also increased the needs in our community for the pro bono services that the King County Bar Foundation funds. I am incredibly proud of the KCBF staff and board, and specifically the creativity and dedication to our mission that they displayed during this unprecedented time. As a result of their hard work, we were able to meet the goals we had previously set for ourselves in unique ways.

The annual King County Law Firm Campaign, which raises funds for civil legal aid services throughout Washington, takes place each fall and is done in partnership with the Legal Foundation of Washington. The 2019 campaign was completed on 12/31/2019, just before COVID-19 hit, and together we raised more than $565,000 in generous donations from firms large and small throughout King County.

Each spring we hold our largest fundraising campaign, the Breakfast With Champions. The Breakfast is the largest gathering of legal professionals in Washington State each year, with over 1,000 people attending and opening
MEETING THE COVID-19 CHALLENGE

Since March 2020, COVID-19 has generated an evolving landscape within which all the Bar’s Pro Bono programs have had to adapt, often on the fly and with little known precedent for effective adaptation. The quarantine has caused a spike in domestic violence cases, and economic uncertainty has led to a huge rise in families at risk of eviction and homelessness. The Neighborhood Legal Clinics continue to receive numerous appointment requests despite being unable to meet with clients in person.

All Pro Bono Services pivoted to adapt to the extraordinary new circumstances the virus has created. They partnered with other organizations, moved to virtual formats, and promoted legislation — such as the evictions moratorium — to help those experiencing the dire negative economic and social consequences of this new COVID reality. As a result of the flexibility and creativity of KCBA’s pro bono staff and volunteers, new and increased demands have been met, and client needs served. Trainings on working effectively with clients remotely have also been provided and well-attended.

The situation continues to evolve and Bar programs are constantly adjusting as a result. Despite the pressure and logistical challenges, vitally important legal work is still being done every day, and the needs of those most vulnerable in our community continue to be met. This success is a testimony to the dedication of our staff and volunteers, and to the commitment of our donors.

THANK YOU ALL.
MINORITY LAW STUDENT SCHOLARSHIPS

For over 50 years, King County Bar Foundation has provided funds for minority law student scholarships at two local law schools. This scholarship program is the driving force behind the Bar’s commitment to providing financial assistance to deserving minority students, increasing workplace diversity in the legal profession, and helping in the retention of minority lawyers who practice in our local communities.

In 2019, KCBF honored the most recent law scholarship recipients at the annual Bar Scholars Reception, held at the Amazon Spheres. Over 60 students from the Seattle University and University of Washington Schools of Law were awarded $150,000 in scholarships, $75,000 to each school.

Since 1970, the Bar has awarded nearly $2.75 million in minority scholarships.

BAR SCHOLAR SPOTLIGHT

VALLEN SOLOMON is a 2020 graduate of Seattle University School of Law and a KCBF Minority Law Student Scholarship recipient. He is also one of 78 public interest lawyers across the country, selected to receive a two-year Equal Justice Works Fellowship. Vallen is spending his fellowship with KCBA’s Housing Justice Project, after having worked for the program as an intern while in law school.

Like Vallen, both of his parents are long-time Seattle residents. He grew up in Bothell and went to law school because “I wanted to advocate for individuals and help them gain or retain things like housing, education, and government benefits...I’ve been drawn to this sort of work because it has always felt like the ‘right’ thing to do.”

Vallen describes the value of his KCBF scholarship: first, the scholarship provided some relief to the huge financial burden of attending law school. It made necessities like housing, books, and food more affordable and accessible. Secondly, the scholarship provided him the opportunity to meet and network with practicing attorneys and other law students who had similar backgrounds, at events like the Bar Scholar reception.

During his fellowship, Vallen will focus on homelessness prevention and eviction defense, with an emphasis on young adults. “During law school, I got really involved in housing-related issues, largely relating to evictions and homelessness prevention. It felt like a natural progression to try and turn that interest and passion into a potential fellowship with an organization like Equal Justice Works.”

Having Vallen working at KCBA feels as if the Minority Law Student Scholarship program has come full circle in a wonderful way.

LSAT PREPARATION GRANT PROGRAM

This is the third year of the Bar’s diversity program offering financial support to minority undergraduate students and recent graduates taking the Law School Admission test. The grants finance commercial preparatory courses and fee waivers from the Law School Admission Council for participants. Eight grants were awarded this year.
FAMILY LAW PROGRAMS

From March 2020, the COVID-19 quarantine has caused an unprecedented increase of almost double the demand for domestic violence protection orders, and in response the Family Law mentor program changed to DV Lead (Domestic Violence Legal Advocacy Program). In addition to the ongoing family law casework, KCBA family law attorneys also provided training for volunteers on this sensitive work. The Statewide Kinship Care Legal Aid Coordinator position has been added to provide advocacy and training to other volunteer legal programs doing kinship care work across the state.

HOUSING JUSTICE PROJECT (HJP)

HJP provides free legal help to eligible low-income tenants facing eviction and since the outbreak of COVID-19 has been actively involved in obtaining the statewide and city eviction moratoriums as well as working with other HJP programs around the state — doing training and providing support and resources during the pandemic. Quarantine regulations mean no in-person appointments, but they continue to provide representation by phone in cases not covered by the moratorium.

CLIENT STORY: HOUSING JUSTICE PROJECT

A group of tenants in an 8-unit building were referred to us by an outside organization. Their landlord had been performing unlicensed construction work on their building that created a dangerous environment: leaking pipes; open electrical wiring.

The City of Seattle issued an emergency vacate order that displaced all the tenants from the home. The tenants did not speak English and were not aware of how to seek help.

Housing Justice Project got in touch with the tenants and made contact with both the City of Seattle and the landlord, demanding that the landlord immediately rectify the issues in order for the tenants to return to their homes. Through our negotiations with the landlord, we obtained a hotel for one tenant, who had extreme mobility issues, while the landlord addressed the underlying issues; our social worker also helped the tenant obtain access to groceries and food delivery services for persons with disabilities and limited mobility.

Eventually, after the landlord rectified the habitability problems, the tenants were allowed to return. Our attorneys negotiated compensation for the tenants and obtained settlements for the harm the damages caused.

THE RECORDS PROJECT

Volunteer Legal Services has refocused to become simply The Records Project. Its emphasis is on vacating criminal convictions, as well as working on removing other barriers to formerly incarcerated individuals returning to the community.

NEIGHBORHOOD LEGAL CLINICS (NLC)

NLC offers individuals a free half-hour consultation with a volunteer attorney. Attorneys determine whether the client has a legal problem, suggest possible options, and provide necessary referrals. Due to social-distancing protocols, NLC has switched to virtual clinic appointments only. Additionally, NLC partnered with the City of Seattle and the American Immigration Lawyers Association — Washington (AILAWA) to hold a series of clinics in response to US Supreme Court cases regarding DACA recipients.
Every spring for the past twenty years, the legal community of King County has gathered to support Minority Student Scholarships and Pro Bono Services at the Breakfast with Champions. This year the in-person event was cancelled due to COVID-19, and instead, on June 2, 2020, KCBF President David Zapolsky hosted the event online.

The virtual Breakfast With Champions event included video from Minority Scholarship recipient Akua Asare-Konadu who spoke on her life growing up with Ghanaian immigrant parents, the challenges she has faced because of casual racism and economic adversity, and the opportunities the scholarship funds provide for her in the form of financial freedom and, ultimately, a career in law.

In another moving video testimony, KCBA Attorney Edmund Witter highlighted the challenging circumstances pro bono legal services face in light of the COVID-19 pandemic.

The change from a live to virtual format did not dampen enthusiasm: over $260,000 was donated via individual contributions and corporate and firm sponsorships! All proceeds support diversity and pro bono civil legal aid efforts in our local community.

Minority Scholarship recipient, Akua Asare-Konadu, tells more of her story at www.kcbf.org/bwc

HOMEBASE TENANT ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

Since 2018, the King County Bar and United Way have partnered to tackle King County’s homelessness crisis by reducing the number of people who lose their homes due to eviction — a leading cause of homelessness. The COVID-19 pandemic has dramatically increased and shifted housing needs in Seattle and King County, forcing the HomeBase Program to adapt and evolve.

The temporary evictions moratorium will keep thousands of families in their homes and is a necessary move during the pandemic. However, when the crisis passes and the moratorium ends, back-rent will still be due. HomeBase will provide emergency rental assistance so people don’t fall behind and end up with insurmountable debt to repay after the COVID-19 crisis passes.

JOINT LAW FIRM CAMPAIGN FOR CIVIL LEGAL AID

Every fall, King County Bar partners with the Legal Foundation of Washington to solicit over half a million dollars in charitable gifts from King County Law Firms. These funds are pooled and sent across the state to ensure our neighbors from Bellingham to Vancouver, Forks to Spokane, and all points in between can provide a civil legal safety net across the state.

A portion of the funds raised is retained by the King County Bar’s local pro bono programs. Unlike government-funded grants which often carry restrictions such as no assistance to undocumented immigrants, the Joint Law Firm Campaign funds can be spent providing services to anyone who needs help.

Thank you to all the firms that participated in 2019!

CLIENT STORY
DOMESTIC VIOLENCE LEGAL ADVOCACY PROJECT (DV LEAD)

Amina,* an immigrant domestic violence survivor from Senegal with two teenage children, had been assisted by the KCBA Self Help Plus Project (SHP) with her filing for Dissolution of Marriage. When her estranged husband contested the terms of the Petition, hired a lawyer, and made a motion for temporary parenting plan orders, SHP referred the case to DV LEAD.

DV LEAD immediately assisted Amina with her emergent legal issue by working pro se and drafting documents to assist in a continuance for her. Once her case was stabilized, DV LEAD assigned a pro bono attorney to represent her. Her husband had threatened to “take the children” despite Amina having always been their caregiver. The attorney was able to step in and assist with a temporary orders hearing which provided much needed safety and stability for Amina and her children.

Following temporary orders, the attorney stayed on the case as it continued to be highly contested. Amina’s case was referred to Family Court Services for a parenting plan assessment which made favorable recommendations for the client, however attempts to settle the case were unsuccessful. The case went to trial and the same pro bono DV LEAD lawyer represented Amina through that process.

Through the advocacy of her volunteer attorney, the court made several findings against Amina’s ex, including limitations in the parenting plan for acts of domestic violence, child abuse, abandonment, neglect, lack of emotional ties, and abusive use of conflict. Amina received the residential schedule she was hoping for, and her estranged husband was ordered into interventions before his residential time with the children can increase. In addition, the court made financial findings that were favorable to Amina.

After the completion of her case, Amina wrote a thank you note to the DV LEAD program and her volunteer lawyer. She stated that she “has no words to express” her gratitude. And she went on to say “[n]ow that everything is over, my kids are stable, happier and doing great at school, while I am trying to go back to school and finish my program.”

CORONAVIRUS PANDEMIC

COVID-19 presented many unique challenges to KCBA’s pro bono programs and the clients served by these programs. Additionally, the pandemic has caused significant increases in the demand for civil legal aid services. Your pro bono programs have risen to the challenge created by COVID and all programs have been serving clients remotely since the onset of COVID-19.

For fiscal year 2020, KCBA Pro Bono Programs served 9143 clients

While a bit down from previous years, this is in large part due to the Eviction Moratorium that continues to be in place.

Our Family Law programs served over 450 clients

We have seen a significant surge in requests and the need for assistance in obtaining long term protection orders.

By pivoting to virtual and telephonic clinic models, Neighborhood Legal Clinics served 5,600+ individuals

Even with the eviction moratorium, our Housing Justice Project assisted over 2,800 clients

Our Records Project worked with 174 individuals on vacating eligible convictions.

Our incredible volunteers have stepped up during COVID.

Over 1,250 attorney volunteers have donated 14,267 hours of time

This equates to over $5,700,000 in free legal services
